Rounddance a Fun and Educational Evening for WSU and Community

by Faith Price

ASWSU Ku-Ah-Mah, WSU's Native student organization, held its annual rounddance Saturday Nov 2, 2013 at the SEL Event Center. Several hundred people shared a meal and danced the evening away, socializing with friends new and old.

Emcee Dan Nanamkin emphasized that the rounddance was a social event, as well as an educational opportunity for the WSU community. He explained many aspects of the rounddance to the crowd throughout the night. The host singers were War Tribe, and invited singers were Red Tail and Lightning Creek.

A special song was sung in honor of Dan Maher, the advisor to Ku-Ah-Mah. Maher has served as an advisor to student organizations for more than 30 years. A free stew dinner was provided for all in attendance by the WSU Native American Women's Association.

The co-chairs of ASWSU Ku-Ah-Mah are Shae Gamble, Tlingit, and Ryan Ward, Cowlitz.
