

Biologist discovers Tasmanian devil evolution

Australia's iconic Tasmanian devil is evolving in response to a deadly and contagious form of cancer, suggesting new hope for the species' survival.

Read more

Welcome new CAS faculty!

Meet five new members of the CAS community whose disciplinary expertise—from aquatic ecotoxicology to operatic mad scenes to metal cluster complexes in multifunctional materials—enriches and expands the arts and sciences at WSU.

Read more

Sociologist: Why do more women study engineering in Muslim nations than in U.S.?

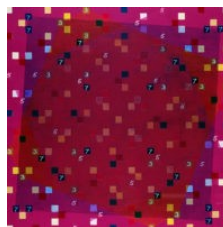

New research by a WSU sociologist seeks to help meet the need for more U.S. women engineers by learning what motivates women to study engineering in mostly Muslim countries.

Read more

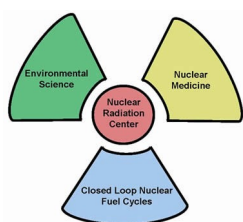

Teaching with art adds dimension, meaning

Whether teaching mathematics, anthropology, music, physics...nearly any subject, integrating art into classroom instruction helps illustrate ideas and gives shape to abstract concepts.

Read more

Filling the critical need for more radiochemists

WSU's new radiochemistry training program for graduate students aims to address a worsening shortage of nuclear energy scientists.

Read more

Vital new support for U.S. security, energy

A unique, new research facility managed by WSU and the U.S. Dept. of Energy provides unprecedented capabilities to resolve national security and energy challenges.

Read more

CAS faculty earn distinguished titles

Distinguished professorships honor our premier faculty, and the endowed funds enable their further scholarly, creative, and research endeavors.

Read more

New CAS leaders appointed

Several CAS academic units are welcoming new leadership this fall. Find out who's taking a new role.

Read more

September 2016

Grant and fellowship support

The College of Arts and Sciences can help you with every step of the pre-award process.

Coming events

- Faculty Artist Series
Concerts:
Sept. 9, 15, 20, 22, 23, 27, 30
- Fine Arts Faculty
Focus Exhibit: Chris Watts
Through Sept. 17
- CAS Town Hall with President Schulz and Provost Bernardo
Sept. 27

CAS in the news

Browse the latest media

mentions about the college.

Department news and newsletters

What's happening next door?

CAS photo galleries

See slideshows of recent events.

Spotlight your success!

Tell the CAS community about your honors, awards, and achievements.

Share it!

See a story you like or other information worth sharing?

Use the tools at top left to

Tweet it, post it on Facebook,

Tumblr, etc., or email it to your friends and colleagues at

WSU or wherever they are.

