Professor Peter Nansen,
Director, Danish Centre for Experimental Parasitology
Royal Veterinary and Agricultural University, Denmark

Professor Nansen became Professor of Parasitology in 1983 at the Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences, and since 1984 he has been Professor of Veterinary Parasitology at the Royal Veterinary and Agricultural University in Denmark. His research areas are host-parasite relationships with emphasis on pathophysiology and immunology, and helminth infections with particular relevance to transmission ecology, epidemiology and control. Professor Nansen is coordinator of research and training programmes in East Africa, Indonesia and the Baltic States. Since 1990 he has been chairman of the Government’s Advisory Committee on Veterinary Research, and he is founder and director since 1993 of the Danish Centre for Experimental Parasitology. He became appointed doctor honoris causa at the Estonian University of Agriculture in 1993 and elected foreign member of the Lithuanian Academy of Sciences in 1994.
